

I am dismayed that the "Do not call" law is going to be weakened. It seems to me that whatever is better for big business is valued more than for the average working person. We clearly made it known that we do not want telemarketing phone calls either at home or on our cell phones. Is this a Republican thing? Too bad for the little guy, let's let the corporations make more money.